IIMSAM OFFICIAL PRESS RELEASE

INTERNATIONAL BENEFIT FRIENDLY GAME IN ARGENTINA BETWEEN ARGENTINA AND HAITI BOTH PART OF THE IIMSAM FAMILY TO ERADICATE MALNUTRITION

IIMSAM'S Goodwill Ambassador Diego Maradona and IIMSAM'S Official Partner Dr. Yves Bart President of H.F.F. Haitian Football Federation

(IIMSAM Headquarters, New York 5TH May 2010) The Inter-governmental Institution for the use of Micro-algae Spirulina Against Malnutrition ("IIMSAM") official working partner in Haiti to promote the use of Spirulina to fight severe malnutrition in Haiti the (Haitian Football Federation French name: Fédération Haitienne de Football) signed an MOU of Cooperation on 25th of January as part of IIMSAM's efforts in Haiti already under way to bring help to the victims of the January Earthquake that killed more than 200,000 Haitians.

The National Team of Argentina will be playing a friendly benefit game against Haiti's National Team for the Haitian Earthquake Victims. On paper, it is as lopsided a match as you can find. One nation has won two FIFA World Cups and has aspirations to capture its third in July, while the other has qualified for just one Finals series (in 1974) and is currently in ruins following a devastating earthquake it suffered in January. What then brings these two countries together for a friendly on May 5? For Argentina, the game serves as an opportunity to help out a nation recovering from the trauma of a natural disaster (part of the profit will go to the Haiti Relief Fund), as well as letting another part of the country view the National Team.

Since taking over Argentina in November of 2008, IIMSAM'S GWA Diego Maradona has made a diligent effort to take La Selección on the road, from the typical venue of River Plate's El Monumental to the interior of the country, with Cordoba, Mar del Plata, and Rosario all having had a chance to host games during Maradona's reign. All three of the aforementioned cities are large metropolitan areas with stadiums that hosted games during the 1978 World Cup. But this time, Maradona and company head to Patagonia and the city of Cultral Có, a city of only 30,000, in the province of Neuquén. The stadium, El Coloso de Ruca Quimey, is the home of Alianza Cultral Co of Argentina's Fifth Division of football. There is no doubt that for this small town known for petroleum, hosting a game for the National Team is a treat, and there is little doubt that all 17,000 seats will be filled. For Haiti, the game will give the football fans of the country a brief escape from the suffering with a chance to watch football. "In Haiti, people ask when we're going to play Argentina. People want you to do something good for the country," defender Peter Germain said.

IIMSAM'S Director-GENERAL, Ambassador Remigio Maradona Stated:

“It is unfortunately that I was not able to be there for the Game because I am travelling in Mexico promoting the IIMSAM Mandate however it gives me a great pleasure to see the IIMSAM Family promoting the need to help our Haitian brothers as far as I am concern is not important who wins or looses, the important thing is to make our Haitian Brothers in Haiti the winners and give them a moment of happiness making them forget for a moment their devastating plight. The game is also great for Argentineans because Diego has done a great gesture in showcasing the National Squad to ordinary Argentineans outside of Buenos Aires and bringing it to the peoples of the interior which hardly get to see this beautiful game of football play by La Selección.”

IIMSAM-IMAP moved immediately to help the victims of the earthquake which struck Haiti by adopting a fast-track "primary emergency Team of Medical Experts" for immediate relief activities which are working with partner hospitals and are doing an outstanding job in treating patients, providing medical equipment, medicines, water etc.
